00114791 The project aims to mitigate the devastating impact of the Syrian crisis by addressing the country's economic, social, and health challenges. It focuses on creating jobs, strengthening livelihoods, and enhancing the resilience of crisis-affected individuals. Building on the success of previous initiatives, the project aligns with UNDP's comparative advantages and strategic goals, with a particular emphasis on short-term and medium-to-long-term solutions. The ultimate objective is to contribute to the sustainable recovery and development of Syria, while alleviating the hardships faced by its people.	private sector recovery	1/1/2019	12/31/2023		30000	UN HIGH COMMISSIONER FOR REFUGEES	72100 - Contractual Services-Companies	2,237.00

00119961 "The project's primary objective is to strategically align with UNDP's pivotal role as the UN's global development network. This alignment is driven by a profound recognition of the pivotal role that employment and livelihood opportunities play in advancing human development. It is deeply ingrained in UNDP's overarching strategies, reflecting both the present commitments and the future aspirations. UNDP's active involvement in livelihood and economic recovery initiatives is not arbitrary but a result of a well-delineated comparative advantage and a demonstrated capacity. In doing so, the project inherently subscribes to UNDP's strategic plan, which harbors a specific outcome intimately connected to jobs and livelihoods, especially in the context of crises and post-crisis scenarios. The project's interpretation of livelihood is comprehensive, encompassing a broad spectrum of strategies and practices that individuals employ to harness their assets, capabilities, and activities for the betterment of themselves, their families, and their communities	Facilitating access to service	1/1/2020	12/31/2023		30000	KREDITANSTALT FUR WIEDERAUFBAU	73100 - Rental & Maintenance-Premises	16,348.00

00121010 The project aims to boost the local economy and provide socio-economic support to the vulnerable population in East Ghouta. It follows a two-track approach, focusing on both rapid livelihood support and long-term economic recovery. Specifically, it aims to empower women economically, provide self-employment support, and enhance livelihoods through vocational training and entrepreneurship. The project also targets persons with disabilities, aiming to improve their functionality, independence, and economic inclusion through rehabilitation and job opportunities. 00126668 ""The project in Raqqa governorate is centered on enhancing the livelihoods of vulnerable communities, including IDPs and returnees. It places a strong emphasis on promoting economic recovery and social inclusion. The core of this initiative revolves around boosting livelihood opportunities, particularly in agriculture and related sectors. This includes supporting local farmers to diversify their agricultural production through the cultivation of feedstuff crops . Additionally, it empowers small-scale farmers and women gardeners by providing the necessary resources for vegetable cultivation, such as seeds, irrigation, and organic fertilizers. The project also prioritizes the livestock industry, offering veterinary services to sheep breeders in remote areas through mobile veterinary units. Furthermore, the project focuses on the collective operation of hatching units, managed by women involved in laying hens distribution. These initiatives not only create new job opportunities but also serve to secure lost goods, contributing to economic recovery and social resilience in the region."" This involves community engagement, the restoration of local services and infrastructure, and the revitalization of livelihood opportunities. Within this project, efforts are made to improve and expand access to water in areas suffering from water scarcity, which, in turn, supports food security. These initiatives include enhancing irrigation infrastructure, providing water pumps and irrigation systems, and supporting smallholder farmers. The project also places a strong focus on the rehabilitation of healthcare facilities and schools in urban areas, which not only facilitates access to essential services for a significant number of patients but also generates new job opportunities. In addition, there's an emphasis on reactivating and revitalizing livelihoods by offering employment and self-employment support, with a particular focus on youth, women, and persons with disabilities.
