01005764 The proposed project in Turkmenistan aims to support the modernization and digital transformation of the judicial system, focusing on strengthening the Supreme Court’s capacity, enhancing digital readiness, and aligning judicial practices with international standards and UN human rights recommendations. Through a comprehensive Digital Readiness Assessment, the project will evaluate institutional, technical, legal, and human-capacity preparedness, including gender-responsive considerations, to identify gaps in digital infrastructure, workflows, case management, and access to justice for women. Building on these findings, the project will develop a costed, phased roadmap and technical concept for a Judicial Information System (JIS), ensuring inclusive design, transparency, and sustainability.
