Brief Description

Lebanon is one of the world's 20 most densely populated countries and hosts the world's largest refugee population compared to the country's own inhabitants. In addition, Lebanon has further faced an unprecedented and multifaceted economic, financial, social and health crisis since 2019. As a consequence, vulnerable populations have been deeply affected by a sharp increase in socio-economic needs, gaps in critical supply chains and limitations on access to food, healthcare, education, employment and other basic services. Lebanon's multiple crises have only compounded the pre-existing environmental and service delivery challenges that existed in Lebanon for decades now. Worsening environmental pollutions and access to services, coupled with lack of job opportunities and increasing poverty, are contributing to increased tensions at the local level amongst the various communities. To address these challenges, this project aims at integrating the tension reduction with environmentally friendly approaches to mitigate the negative impacts of the crisis. This will ultimately improve the physical living conditions of the most vulnerable people while reducing the tension and showcase such integrated interventions that can be replicated by other stakeholders engaged in the LCRP. The interventions will include using solar energy solutions and various nature-based solutions at facility/community-level (such as in hospitals, dispensaries, schools or other such institutions that provide public services). At the same time, the project will also strengthen the capacities of local actors and the technical teams at the Ministry of Environment to improve environmental compliance procedures, which will facilitate further the replication of LCRP activities that are integrated with environmental practices.
