Part A. Integrating Programming Principles to Strengthen Social and Environmental Sustainability

QUESTION 1: How Does the Project Integrate the Programming Principles in Order to Strengthen Social and Environmental Sustainability?

Briefly describe in the space below how the project mainstreams the human rights-based approach

The project has the rights-based approach in its centre. It will greatly contribute towards equity and inclusiveness by directly tackling environmental degradation, which has a greater impact on poorer segments of the society. Pollution in Lake Sevan directly impacts the local economic development, i.e., income of fishmongers, tourism industry, etc. Throughout its implementation the project will follow the principles of the human rights-based approach accepting the universality and inalienability; interdependence and inter-relatedness of human rights; non-discrimination and equality. The Project will make sure that none of its interventions violates any of the universal human rights and demonstrates respect and tolerance to diversity. Inclusive participation is the core values of the Project and through its approach, implementation methodology and tools the Project will support wide participation and inclusion of the most vulnerable groups into value creation. All the project activities will be implemented keeping the national law and with zero tolerance for any violations by the beneficiaries or the project staff.

Briefly describe in the space below how the project is likely to improve gender equality and women's empowerment

The Project supports the integration of gender equality aspects into strategies, concepts and guidelines for the sustainable and biodiversity-friendly management of water, land and ecosystems. Databases, analyses, instruments and decision support tools developed by the Project will be based on gender-disaggregated data, and developed and applied with a significant participation of man and women as researchers, planners, trainers, lecturers, etc. Formation, training and awareness-raising measures and materials will target at both women and men and reflect the different needs and interests of both sexes. The project will support the quantitative and qualitative participation of women in decisions on the elaboration, implementation and control of management plans (e.g., basin management plan, national park management plan, etc.). In general, UNDP will mainstream gender issues in all stages of project implementation and the following approach will be applied:

- Ensure gender mainstreaming in capacity development measures, including family engagement into public awareness and capacity building activities
- Ensure women’s active participation in the basin planning and related decision-making processes, encourage participation and delivery at events
- Encourage also the participation of families (women and men) in training and to plan, discuss and make decisions jointly
- Ensure gender equality in awarding grants (if any) and access to resources
- Ensure gender-responsive methodology taking into consideration the specific needs of women and men during assessments and studies, trainings, awareness-raising campaigns.

Briefly describe in the space below how the project mainstreams sustainability and resilience

Environmental sustainability will be considered throughout the project. The Project is directly supporting environmental sustainability as reducing pollution and protecting ecosystems in the Lake Sevan basin will have a direct impact on restoring the biodiversity and long-term impact on environmental sustainability. Natural resources and ecosystems are a key capital of this project. The economic value of natural resources is growing with increased fishing, agricultural production, which at the same time implies potential risks and further depletion of natural resources if not sustainably managed. It will therefore be ensured that all stakeholders understand and appreciate the economic value of the environment and of ecosystems, that activities equally take environmental sustainability and social inclusion into account. Environmental and climate change aspects will be addressed at the policy level, as they shall be tackled in the framework of the joint learning events as well as mainstreamed in policy and regulatory frameworks, to the extent possible.

Briefly describe in the space below how the project strengthens accountability to stakeholders

Steering and Advisory boards have been established within in the project. To ensure ownership by partners and sustainability of actions, all activities of the outputs are planned and executed in strong collaboration with relevant key stakeholders and partners: Ministry of Environment, Sevan National Park, Water committee, Ministry of Territorial Administration and Infrastructure, RA Parliament Committee on Environment, Academic institutions, GIZ, EU Twinning, EUWI+, WWF, etc. Meetings and discussions are a continuous part of all the processes implemented within the project, also considering regular stakeholder mapping update, to ensure full involvement. All the planning documents and outputs are shared with partners for respective feedback.
